International Trade Workshop, II

Hong Kong, February 28, 2009

It is the second workshop jointly organized by the Department of Economics, Hong Kong Baptist University and the Research Center for International Economics at the University of International Business and Economics. It is a sequel to the one held at the University of International Business and Economics, Beijing, China on November 22, 2008.

We welcome papers related to international trade, foreign direct investment, and international labor migration. Both theoretical and empirical papers are possible.

The workshop encourages interactions and exchanges among the participants, and it will be conducted in a friendly, informal, and casual atmosphere. Work in progress is also welcome.
